Not so long ago almost any student who successfully completed a university degree or diploma could find a good career quite easily. Companies toured the academic institutions, competing with each other to recruit graduates. Nowadays graduates face strong competition in the search for jobs. Most career organizations highlight three stages for graduates to follow in the process of securing a suitable career: recognizing abilities, matching these to available vacancies and presenting them well to prospective employees. Jobseekers have to make a careful assessment of their own abilities. One area of assessment should be of their academic qualifications, which would include special skills within their subject area. Graduates should also consider their personal values and attitudes or the relative importance to themselves of such matters as money, security, leadership and caring for others. An honest assessment of personal interests and abilities such as creative or scientific skills or skills acquired from work experience, should also be given careful thought.

Question: According to the paragraph, job seekers should

- a. aim to give a balanced account of what the employer needs
- b. listen and speak to the interviewer
- c. discuss their own abilities in relation to the job
- d. gain experience in word processing

Your answer is correct.

Moderate earthquakes shook Tang early yesterday, striking fear into millions of Chinese. In 1976, a much stronger tremor in the same city killed 240,000 and heralded the death of Mao Zedong. Superstitions now surround years in which the lunar calendar counts the eighth month twice. The so called double August occurred in 1976 and began on August 26 this year. It lasts until October 23. Soothsayers suggest that just as the death of Mao followed shortly after the 1976 quake, the death of ailing patriarch Deng Xiaoping might be foretold. This time however there was no devastation or casualty.

Question: Where would you expect to find this passage in a newspaper?
